

Fringe

Fringe is a fun way to create some added interest and texture to any piece. A quick and easy process, you'll soon be adding fringe to every project!

To start, you will need to cut off lengths of yarn to form the fringe. The cut length should be twice the length you want the finished fringe to be. If you are making a lot of fringe, it can be helpful to cut a piece of cardboard to the length you need to cut the yarn. Then simply wrap the yarn around the cardboard, cutting both ends of the loops formed by doing so when enough yarn has been wrapped.

Depending on how thick of fringe you would like, grab some lengths of the cut yarn and fold in half. Find the place in your work that you would like the fringe to go and insert a crochet hook, back to front, through this spot. With the crochet hook, grab the loop created by folding the yarn lengths and bring through your work.

Using your fingers, reach through the loop and grab the yarn ends. Bring through the loop and pull tight. One fringe created. Repeat this process for as much fringe as you would like on your work.
